

Damir Magdić, PhD
Tenured professor

Basic data:

Damir Magdić –Tenured professor at Faculty of Food Technology, University of Osijek, Croatia (from 2019); BSc degree in 1992 (University of Osijek, Croatia); MSc degree in 1999 (University of Zagreb, Croatia), PhD degree in 2003 (University of Zagreb, Croatia); Head of Sub-department of Modeling, Optimization and Automation (2005-2017; 2022-...); Vice Dean for Education (2005-2010; Designing, introducing and organizing Bologna reform process at one Pre-graduate and three Graduate Studies); International Expert for the Evaluation and Accreditation of Higher Education Institutions and Study Programs.

Teaching experience:

Undergraduate study (1999-2015)– Informatics, Physics, Technical physics, Thermodynamics; Measurement, regulation and automation;
Graduate study (1993-...)- Modeling and Management in Food Technology Processes, Modeling and Optimization of Processes, Diet Optimization by Computer Applying; Postgraduate study (2005-...)- Diet Modeling and Optimization, Non-destructive Methods of Analysis of Food and Processes, Non-destructive Methods of Analysis of Economic Species.

Research experience:

Scientific area: Biotechnical sciences; Scientific field: Food Technology. Main subjects: modeling, data analysis, simulation and optimization, chemometrics, non-destructive analysis, food materials and nutrition. Published 50+ scientific papers, participated with oral and poster presentations at 30+ international and national scientific congresses and conferences, mentor at 40+ graduate and doctoral thesis.
